Carlos Jimenez is the next generation of great Puerto Rican flute players, following the steps of Dave Valentin and Nestor Torres. Born in Yonkers, New York. He started playing trumpet at four years old, under his father's guidance. He then moved to Puerto Rico and studied trumpet and flute at Fransisco Zayas Santana High School with Professor, Pablo Leon.

While completing his education in classical music, he studied with master musicians Dave Valentin, Hilton Ruiz, Mario Rivera, Bobby Porcelli, Sonny Bravo and Mike Longo. Jimenez' talent and passion for Latin Jazz has resulted in him recording and performing with many jazz greats, including Hilton Ruiz, Stephane Ronget, Barry Harris, Dave Valentin, Jay Hoggard, Craig Holiday Heynes, Sonny Bravo, Dick Griffin, Eddie Allen, Cecil Bridgwater, John Benitez, Earl May, Leroy Williams, Willie Martinez, Chico Freeman, Edy Martinez, Alfredo Valdez Jr., Javier Vazquez, Edy Zervigon, Willie Cintron, Sergio Rivera, Karen Joseph, Ruben Rodriguez, Lewis Kahn, Gregg August, Vince Cherico and Bobby Porcelli.
